DEFINITE CLUE STILL REMAINS TO BE FOUND

(City Universal Service)
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—Nothing definite has yet been established in the search for the kidnaper and slayer of 12-year-old Marian Parker.

Various suspects have been grilled, possible clues have been unearthed, but, so far as is known, the trail of the murderer is still covered.

Four thousand police officers in southern California are engaged in the search. The total of rewards offered for the arrest and conviction of the slayer stands near the $100,000 mark.

"BRUTALLY MURDERED"
A coroner's jury reported today that the child had been "brutally murdered by a person or persons unknown."

The inquest failed to reveal whether the child was living or dead when the ghastly work of dismemberment was conducted, or even how she died.

"I do not know," replied Autopsy-Surgeon A. F. Wagner in response to a question by Coroner Nance.

"She may have been dead from poison," continued Dr. Wagner, who had known little Marian as a neighbor's child.

"POISON SUSPECTED"
"Tests are being made now for poison. It may be that she died in that way, or she may have been drugged and unconscious. But I cannot yet determine the actual cause of death."

It was stated that the cords around the child's neck had not caused strangulation. No traces of chloroform or ether were found in the lungs.

Police announced today that they had recovered the automobile used by the slayer Saturday night when he returned the child's mutilated body to her father, Perry M. Parker, bank official, who surrendered $1500 in the belief he was buying back his daughter alive.

FINGERPRINTS TRACED
The car, it was reported, had been under police surveillance since a short time after the child's body was returned to her father. It had been driven into a garage at Ninth and Grand Avenue by one man, garage attendants said, about an hour after the return of the body. Fingerprints found on the car tally with those found on the kidnaper's letters to the girl's father. It was said.

The car, a Chrysler coupe, was stolen in Kansas City from Dr. Herbert L. Mason, police said. It bore California license number 1-677-679 which had been stolen about a month ago from a San Diego-owned Chevrolet. Under the seat was found the original Missouri license plate.

YOUTH GRILLED
For a while today interest centered in the 23-year-old suspect who was detained yesterday on "suspicion of grand theft." This youth, said to have had some knowledge of the affairs of the Parker family, is said to have been the subject of a conference at police headquarters at which Perry M. Parker, 20-year-old brother of the slain girl, was present. Young Parker is said to have stated he was acquainted with the suspect.

Later it was reported that a school teacher who saw the man who took the Parker child from school by a ruse last Thursday had been shown the suspect. His failed to identify him as the kidnaper, it was said.

FAMILY PROSTRATED
Members of the family of the Parker child were spared the ordeal of the inquest. Identification

School nurse says
all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said:
"One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged.
But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body.
Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken.
Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

HOOT GIBSON
IN FAST FILM
AT RICHMOND

If you enjoy action-fast and furious-if you like comedy when it's funny, and moreover, if you are one of the many million fans of that popular star, Hoot Gibson, don't miss seeing "The Buckaroo Kid" the Universal-Jewel production which is the present featuring attraction at the Richmond reatre, now.

"The Buckaroo Kid" contains these enjoyable ingredients in about equal proportions, will each one contribute to the effectiveness of the others.

Taken from a short story by Peter B. Kyne, the popular author of the "Cappy Ricks" stories,
"The Buckaroo Kid" presents
something new in "Westerns."
Gibson is found in a new locale for a large part of the story then returns to his usual cinema habi-tude, the Western ranch.

If someone has promised to do something quite unpleasant to you and you are dead certain that he is going to do it whether or no, it is not much comfort to reflect that he will be arrested for it afterward.

That is the quiet reasonable assumption upon which the climax of the novel picture is built and proves to be a most exciting and amusing one. Of course, the unpleasant threat isn't quite carried out and everything comes out to the general satisfaction of everybody concerned.

Ethel Shannon, Barr McIntosh,
James Gordon, Charles Colby, Clark Comstock, Harry Todd, Newton House and others play the more prominent roles in support of the star.

The picture was made under the skillful direction of Lynn Reynolds, who also wrote the screen
adaptation of the story.

POLA NEGRI IN FEATURE ROLE
AT CALIFORNIA

Pola Negri, in a role superbly suited to her exotic temperament, is due to win many plaudits through her finished performance in "The Woman on Trial."

The Paramount production opened last night at the California theatre and will close its engagement tonight.

She appears as a modern woman of fashion in Paris wedded to a rich husband whom she does not love. A dual theme is curried out, one indicating the star's unquenchable love for an artist, sick and in poverty; the other bearing on love for her child and the extremity-even to murder-to which a woman will go if her child is taken from her through trickery and force.

While the picture is one of essential drama in the romantic scale, the fashion element will also interest many women. Miss Negri appears in the latest and most lavish gowns and fairly scintillates with gorgeous gems.

Commendable work is done by Elmer Hanson, leading man; Arnold Kent, suave Parisian with a touch of villainy; and Anne-Sarti who portrays the husband.
In fact, the acting throughout is of a smooth polished sort that is a relief to the critical-minded.

The direction is a matter of admiration. Mauritz Stiller, who made "Hotel Imperial" again in-fuses a Continental savor into his work, developing each sequence with a sure hand while bringing effects into play that add much to the picture.

Miss Negri has repeated the success that attended "Hotel Imperial" and "Barbed Wire."

For the literary inclined, it may be mentioned that "The Woman on Trial" is based on a stage play by Ernest Vajda, noted Hungarian dramatist.

Other features on the same program include "A Short Tail," a Paramount novelty film; "Ko Ko
The Knight"; "Topics of the Day" and Larry Canelo at the organ.

DEMPEY THROUGH; TUNNEY GETS SHARKEY NEXT

I have it on good authority that Jack Dempsey will never fight again, and that Jack Sharkey is to be built up into Gene Tunney's next opponent.

Dempsey, according to my informant, is satisfied that he would be courting serious injury by entering the ring again, and will close out his public career with a series of vaudeville appearances starting in January.

The business of building up Sharkey will be started immediately. I understand that Sharkey will not fight Tom Heeney, the Australian, on January 12. This match has already been knocked in the head once and will again be postponed. If my information is correct, Sharkey is to be kept under cover until the springtime, and then thrown in against Tunney in a match for the championship. Boston may be selected for the fight.

Efforts will be made to match either Jack Delaney or Johnny Risko with Heeney on January 13.

Of course this may all be conjecture, but it will be interesting to see how it works out. If the Sharkey-Heeney match, now scheduled for January 13, is thrown out, you can feel reasonably sure that the above dope is right. If Sharkey goes through with the Heeney fight, on January 13, you can discount whatever has been written above.

JACK DELANEY WANTS SHARKEY MATCH

Every one close to Dempsey would be happy if the former champion stopped fighting.

In his last three fights, two with Tunney and one with Sharkey, Dempsey took head beatings. At his age, the punning around the head is apt to bring on grave disorders.

The death of Tiger Flowers made every one in the fighting racket freshly aware of the dangers of this. Harry Greb and Pancho Villa died the same way. And out on the Coast, Ad Wolgast is still training for imaginary foes.

Dempsey can retire now and rest on his laurels. He will go down in ring history as one of the greatest heavyweight champions of all time, even though he never returns to the ring.

His fights against Sharkey and Tunney served to lend added glamour to his ring record. He doesn't have to go back to the wars to prove his class, for he has already proved it.

However there will be plenty of objections raised if Sharkey is thrown into a Tunney engagement without any prelims.

I know that Jack Delaney will become thoroughly steamed up if this plan goes through.

Delaney has always felt that Sharkey was one fighter he could knock out. There are plenty of Delaney admirers who feel the same way about it.

When Delaney covered Sharkey's training camp for a local newspaper, at the time Sharkey was training for Dempsey, the French Canadian was frank in his disparagement of Sharkey's work.

"Sitting at the ringside, I can call every punch Sharkey intends using before he knows it himself," Delaney wrote on one occasion. "Sharkey is called a boxer, but actually he is a novice at boxing," wrote Delaney on another occasion.

Delaney has never concealed his low opinion of Sharkey as a fighter and boxer. If Sharkey is shoved ahead of Delaney, I can see Delaney biting nails in his rage.

TUNNEY AND GIBSON HAVE PANNED SHARKEY

If the plan is to build up Sharkey for the next Tunney engagement, you can read some sense into the various public announcements of Gene Tunney and Billy Gibson.

For no reason at all, Tunney and Gibson have consistently panned Sharkey.

They have questioned his courage and his ability to take a body beating.

Gibson, asked by Ed Frayne to rank the challengers among the heavyweights, rated Heeney first, and added this voluntary thought: "Heeney will knock out Sharkey if they meet. Sharkey can't take it in the stomach."

You have the makings of a nice little feud there, if that was the thought in mind.

However, the same statements may serve as a boomerang. The fans may ask why if Heeney was rated to beat Sharkey by Tunney, he was not given preference.

I confess that I am anxious to see if that Sharkey-Heeney match goes through. My informant was certain that they will never meet. We shall see what we shall see.

DRUGGISTS GET WIN, MCRACKEN FIVE COMES IN

The Santa Fe Tie Walkers will agree with anyone that it is a tough life. It was also a tough game for them to lose last night to the LaMoine Druggists, the score being 23 to 22. But what made it tougher was in the last second to play, Gualdoni started to shoot a bucket as the time-keeper sounded off and the basket was no good at all.

In the second game of the evening the Y. L. L. Girls of Richmond completely outplayed the Y. L. S. Girls of St. Elizabeth's of Oakland by a score of 29 to 4 in a loosely played game.

The Mcracken Clothiers took the measure of the strong Ben Malik quintet by a score of 26 to 18 in the last game of the night.

The Tie Walkers started out with the idea of winning and if the time-keeper had only called the game a few seconds later than he did the game would have ended with a score that would have placed the Tie Walkers in the win column.

Torrence started out with a bucket; Daley followed with a foul; then a bucket, a beauty and Schrader shot a bucket from a distance; Tulla did the same; J. Baldwin shot a foul; Tulla got another bucket; and Daley got a foul.

Gualdoni started out the second quarter by tying the score with a foul; Daley made a bucket; Gualdoni a foul; Schrader a bucket; O'Brien a foul and Schrader a pretty bucket.

Schrader started the second half with a bucket; O'Brien followed; Gualdoni got a long one; Paul Villalobos came through with another; Gualdoni again and Torrence finished the quarter with a bucket.

Gualdoni again tied the score with a bucket as the last quarter opened; Torrence broke it with a bucket; Tulla followed, but O'Brien and Fanning united with four points to win the game.

And that was that. Only four buckets were shot in the first quarter of the Mcracken-Ben Malik game. Johnny Hutton got one; Wilson one and then repeated and Chattelton shot one.

Bowman opened the second quarter with a bucket; Wilson got one; Theiste another, Bertoni one and Gadberry a point.

As the second half opened Chattelton made two points on fouls; Theiste made a bucket; Bowman repeated; C. Baldwin did the same; Bertoni sank a long one; Hutton a bucket; J. Baldwin a bucket and then repeated.

Bowman opened the last quarter with two buckets; McLaughlin made a point; J. Baldwin a bucket and Hoskings shot two to end the game.

Both games were fast and snappy but from the standpoint of excitement the Railroad-Druggists game was the best of the evening.

The line-ups:

DRUGGISTS—Daley, Morrison, O'Brien, forwards; Schrader, Fanning, centers; Moore, McAllister and Thompson, guards.

TIE-WALKERS—Tulla, Villalobos and Arturs, forwards; Torrence, center; Grandt, Bowen and Gualdoni, guards.

BEN MALIKS—Bertoni, Hoskings, Hutton, forwards; Gadberry, Chattelton, centers; Vargas, McLaughlin, guards.

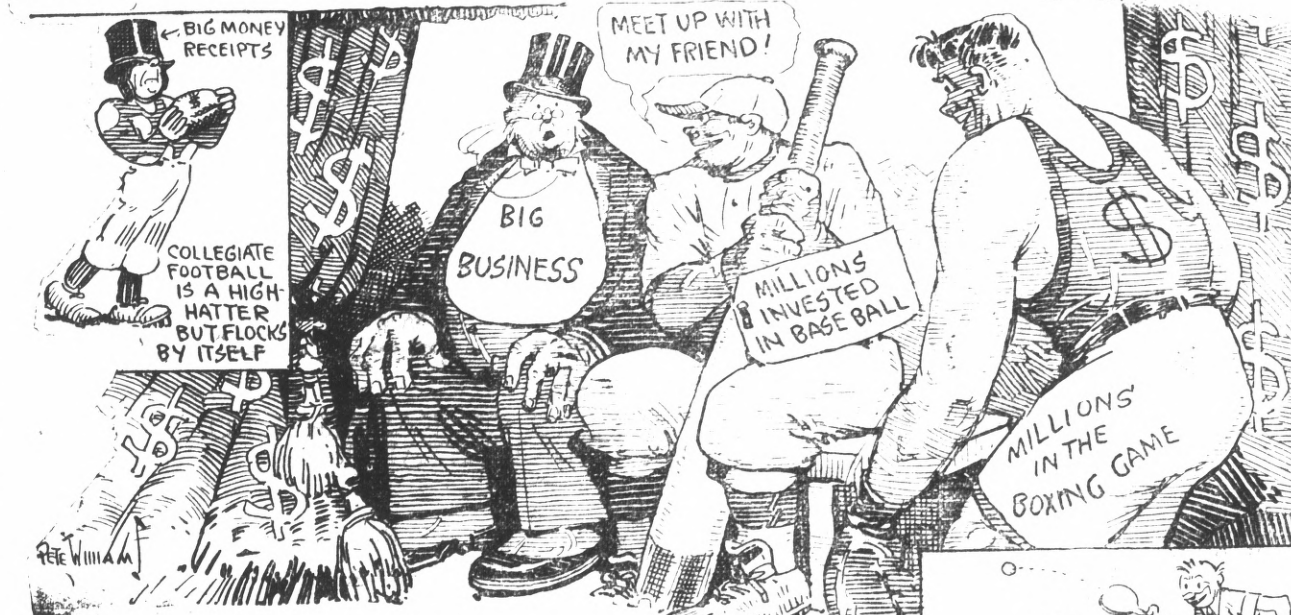

MCRACKEN—Wilson, Harrison, Sanders, forwards; Bowman and Kamb, centers; J. Baldwin, C. Baldwin and Theiste, guards.

SAN PABLOANS WIN 11 INNING GAME SUNDAY

The San Pablo Garage team defeated the league-leading New Process Laundry team of Oakland Sunday afternoon in an eleven inning game. The score was 4 to 2 when the bats were stacked away. From the fourth inning, the score stood 2 all but in the eleventh, the Garagemen annexed the two winning runs that won the game and gave them second place in the league.

The line-up was as follows: Hansen, cf. and c.; Moltoza, c.; Matteri, 3b.; Gregory, 1b.; Daley, 2b.; Andrade, lf.; Wickesser, ss.; Farrier, rf. and Buttschach, p.

SURVIVORS USE LAST BOTTLE OF OXYGEN

PROVINCETOWN, Dec. 19.

Still alive, six men, imprisoned at the bottom of the sea in the sunken S-4 used their last bottle of oxygen this afternoon, then tapped out this pathetic question: "Is there any hope?"

At 4:45 p. m. the oscillator of the S-4's sister ship, the S-8 picked up the message. Only an hour and ten minutes before it had received these grim words:

"We used our last oxygen bottle tonight."

With defeat and death standing by, with a gale rising that threatened to put an end to all rescue efforts the S-8 answered the pitiful query: "Is there any hope?" with this reply:

"There is hope—everything possible will be done."

But it was almost certain that on the S-4 rammed and sunk by the coast guard destroyer Paulding at 3:37 p. m. Saturday, the machinery which might have received the answer had been wrecked and it was almost as certain that the men who sent the answer felt that their six comrades were doomed.

The last messages received from the S-4 were announced tonight by Lieutenant Commander Muschitz, aide to Admiral Brumby at the Charlestown naval yards. He denied emphatically that any announcement had been made to the effect that the oxygen supply on the S-4 was exhausted at six o'clock tonight.

In fact he said, "the men can live until six o'clock tomorrow night and perhaps longer."

NEW COMET IS VISIBLE HERE NEAR SUNDOWN

Skjellerup, the latest discovery in the stellar constellation, is now visible to the naked eye in the west each evening just at sundown, providing there is no interference from unforeseen elements.

This was disclosed yesterday by Dr. A. O. Leuschner, University of California astronomer, who with his staff is endeavoring to compute the various details of the new comet, discovered on December 3, by a scientist whose name the star bears, from an observatory in Melbourne, Australia.

Last Sunday the comet was at its closest point to the earth—a distance of some 28 million miles—according to estimates given out yesterday by Dr. Leuschner in Berkeley. On that evening, Dr. Leuschner claims to have observed the new orbit with most satisfactory results.

Man Found Lying On Road Believed Amnesia Victim

MARTINEZ, Dec. 19.—Authorities today were endeavoring to penetrate the veil that shrouds the finding Sunday morning of Richard Cunningham, 60, of Auburn, lying in a dazed condition beside the highway near Orinda Park. Cunningham was discovered by Deputy Sheriff P. Donaldson of Orinda who observed the man while he was driving by in his automobile.

Cunningham, dazed and suffering from exposure during the cold night, was unable to inform Donaldson or authorities who talked to him after his arrival at the county hospital here how he reached the place where he was found or what had occurred to him. Bruises on the man's legs and hips indicated that he might have been struck by an automobile or that he might have been beaten.

The condition of his clothing indicated that he had been lying beside the road for many hours. A letter written by John Cunningham of Minneapolis to his father, Richard Cunningham, at Auburn supplied the man's name. A Southern Pacific railroad ticket, dated December 16, for passage between San Francisco and Sacramento, and $9 was found in the man's pockets.

Although Cunningham's mind had cleared somewhat today and he was able to give his name, his occupation as a farmer and his residence a mile from Auburn he could not inform hospital attaches what had occurred to him.

Cunningham told C. S. Peek, assistant superintendent at the county hospital, that he had gone from Auburn to San Francisco to see a man who owed him money. Unable to locate the man he left San Francisco Friday and crossed to Oakland by ferry. He told Peek he has no recollection of events that transpired after he stepped to the Oakland pier and prepared to board a train.

Physicians said the man might have suffered a lapse of memory and wandered into the hills.

The sheriff's office today endeavored to communicate with friends at Auburn. Cunningham's remarks to Peek indicated that his wife is at the Auburn ranch.

Request of A. H. McKinnon, secretary of the El Cerrito Volunteer Fire department, to have the city post a standing reward of twenty-five dollars for whoever finds the person turning in false alarms to the department was referred to City Attorney W. S. Pierce for one week.

A letter from Mr. and Mrs. Roy S. Thorpe, Richmond Annex, was received by the council thanking the fire department for the quick response to the fire at their home a few weeks ago.

of the pitiful little body was made by Dr. Wagner.

"Her name," he said, "was Frances Marion Parker. For four years she lived next door to me."

Condition of the body, it was stated, had made it impossible for surgeons to ascertain if the child had been criminally attacked.

Mrs. Mary Holt, the attendance teacher who had talked with the kidnaper when he took the child from Mt. Vernon Junior High School on the pretext that her father had been hurt in an automobile accident, was almost in a state of collapse when she gave her testimony. The father of the slain child has asserted his belief that no blame attaches to Mrs. Holt.

LOOKED LIKE "GENTLEMAN"

"If I had the slightest suspicion, the remotest idea that anything was wrong, I would never have let her go," the teacher cried.

Considerable light was thrown on the appearance and manners of the kidnaper when the teacher instinctively referred to him by the word "gentleman."

She said she investigated the records and learned there were two Parker girls. She personally did not know the children and was unaware they were twins.

She asked the man which Parker girl he wanted, and he replied "the younger."

"I sent another teacher for Marion who was with the other children in her room at a little Christmas party. Marion was in a lower grade than her sister."

IMPACT FORCE TURNS TRUCK ENTIRELY OVER

Joe Giovanini of 1602 Macdonald avenue, narrowly escaped death yesterday afternoon, when the truck he was driving was struck by a Key System street car at the intersection of Sixteenth street and Macdonald avenue.

Although the truck was completely overturned by the force of the collision, Giovanini escaped except for a few slight bruises about the body. The street car which was going west on Macdonald avenue was in charge of Motorman Burns and had just started after making a stop.

Giovanini was going in the same direction and attempted to make a left turn in front of the car, which had already started, according to the motorman. The fact that the street car was traveling at slow rate of "speed" is believed to be all that saved Giovanini from serious injury. The truck, a light delivery model, was only slightly damaged.

Can't Displease With Gifts For "That Skin..."

Give her cosmetics. Nothing pleases a woman more than fascinating toilet accessories. Nothing adds more to her beauty and personality than beauty lotions.

Smart new vanities in unusual designs add chic to madam's accessories. A square-shaped, slim jewel case in appearance—containing make up to enhance one's beauty, and smart fastidious is a creation of fashion. These vanities come in cases of Chinese red, a cool jade green, a rich jet black, and golden or silver tones.

The fashionable woman now makes up her eyes, as delicately and artistically as she does her face and for this madam needs one of the little round Chinese containers as thin and dainty as a locket with hinge top and mirror. A more charming gift combination can't be imagined than the enameled double compact and lip stick to match.

VAN NUYS—Pacific Tel. & Tel. company installing additional telephone cable in south section of Van Nuys.

The last week is upon us! Santa Claus in all of his varied characterizations is putting the last vestige of seasonal spirit in his activities and the children are repeating a thousand times in his ever attentive ear "not to forget this and that, and oh, yes..."

And the merchants are beginning to wear that little harried look about the eyes as the crowds daily become greater, in spite of the fact that a larger number than ever before have obeyed the injunction: "Do Your Christmas Buying Early."

And speaking about worried looks, the shoppers who have delayed their gift buying until the last week are beginning to be concerned. For fine assortments won't last forever, and there's only one way to get the best: go out and get it and forget that Christmas worry!

It's not too late to take advantage of the fact that many will delay until the last moment. Richmond merchants will keep their doors open until 9 o'clock this week and those who through employment find it impossible to do their buying during the day will find attentive salesforces waiting their bidding.

A survey of the advertisements in today's RECORD-HERALD reveals a surprising amount of genuine bargains. In keeping step with the industrial progress of the city, merchants of Richmond have bought stocks which compare most favorably in price and quality with those in larger cities of the bay district.

Ethics Of 'Mercy Homicides' Studied By Chicago Doctors

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Are "mercy" homicides ever justifiable?

This question, involving human ethics and principle, has been agitating a number of Chicago physicians, as the result of a questionnaire passed along to them in the interest of a scientific approximation of an old human problem.

Whether one person has the right to take the life of another, from motives of pity from a desire to stop only too evident suffering, is a question that has been argued pro and con for centuries. It was revived here recently by the act of a father in England. He drowned his 3-year-old daughter because she was suffering from an incurable disease and was in constant agony.

Dr. N. S. Davis, whose father was a pioneer Chicago physician, often referred to as "the father of medicine in Chicago" suggested that a commission be organized to decide all cases requiring the drastic action so often taken by sympathetic relatives.

"I have often thought," he said, "that if a commission of physicians could be formed to go over a case of this kind, much suffering would be alleviated. Such a body could decide, always unanimously, of course, whether a sufferer should continue to fight for the hope of health again, or leave the child's suffering."

ALL THAT MEN WEAR

1011 MACDONALD AVENUE

FAIR SEX NOW DON BATHROBE OF POOR MALE

By Universal Service
NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—The old order changeth. The husband who formerly owned a bath robe but could never find it because his wife persisted in taking the same has managed to reverse the situation. In a moment of panic when the front door-bell rang or the pot boiled over and the lady of the house, was making her toilette she always pounced on hubby's bath robe. Thus she acquired predatory habits that were never corrected until recently. Universal now learns that women are buying men's bath robes instead of the rather frilly articles in the semi-nude cases provided for them by designers of women's wear. The answer may be found in the greater comfort provided by the light weight all wool robe in bright colors made up to order and approved on general principles by the women. Home dress makers are also planning to use men's robes in which a substitute of wool and cotton is employed in about equal proportions are by no means offensive. The custom of wearing mannish bath-robe had its initial inception back in those days when husbands danced about excitedly in the altogether, following a plunge because their bath robes were doing duty elsewhere. "Bright colors brought the women around to buying instead of borrowing," is the way a Fifth avenue merchant explains matters. "Possibly the popularity of lightweight all wool robes at the beaches last summer among the women added to the craze. Sales of men's robes to women have vastly increased and I judge that the comfort and convenience of the masculine type of bathrobe has something to do with the increase."

Sometimes when we ask women what size of robe the old boy wears they freeze up and assure us in icy accents that the garment is for their own use. And they will not buy woman's robes. Positively not. They want what they want when they need it—when that happens to be."

Shaw's Views On Mussolini Stir Wrath Of Socialists

LONDON, Dec. 19.—"The Bernard Shaw whom we loved and applauded is dead indeed. There remains only a Bernard Shaw grown old and Fascist."

Such is the biting reply of Signor Modigliani, the noted Italian socialist leader, to Shaw's defense of Fascism in his recent correspondence with Herr Adler. Writing in "International Information," Signor Modigliani charges that great English dramatist "tramples on the truth about events in Italy."

Shaw's ancestry "It was by their connivance and by the help of the military forces of the state that Mussolini and his gangs were able not only to administer castor oil, but to murder and burn for two years."

"And it is in that way that they finally reached the point of the march on Rome, in face of which, the King openly and personally sided with the anti-Labor onslaught."

"Is Mr. Shaw ignorant of all that? If so, let him learn it before writing. Or if he knows it, why does he hide the facts?" Signor Modigliani refers to Shaw's Irish ancestry in the following manner: "Two years of resistance, from October, 1920, to October, 1922, hundreds of dead and thousands of wounded (fallen on the side, which was the side of Mr. Shaw when he was young)—does all that mean nothing to this Irish rebel? Would he have allowed anybody to flout his Ireland in such a way whenever the Fascism of the land-owners, backed up by the Tories, put down any unsuccessful attempt by his countrymen?"

The socialist leader accuses Shaw of misrepresentation of facts in his defense of Fascism, and alludes to the Shaw "who was not ashamed to refer, in connection with the events of Italy, to Socialists 'who have never had to administer a farthing of public expenditure or employ a single workman.'"

"EGGLY OR FALSEHOOD?" On this point, Signor Modigliani queries: "Is this folly of falsehoods? Let Mr. Shaw choose."

Continuing, the former Italian leader remarks: "Let him (Shaw) take note and blush for having been ignorant of the fact that Italian Socialism, struck down in a horrible episode of the class struggle by gangs led by a turncoat was for years and years at the head of the greatest local public administration of Italy (without stealing anything to grow rich with), and had created a network of Co-operatives of consumption and production which was admired all over the world."

"Before his conversion, Bernard Shaw would have understood all that Shaw understands it no longer, clanders the Italian working class, and draws up an apology for Fascist brigandage. It is indeed a very bad transformation."

Italian Classical Dancers To Check American Jazz

(By Universal Service)
ROME, Dec. 19.—Classical dancers from fifteen to fifty-five are now being formed by the National School of Aesthetic Dancing with the view of developing the Renaissance of the dances of antiquity to check the popularity and diffusion of American jazz dancers. Everything is being done to attract the greatest number of Italian young women. Mussolini has ordered the school, placed under the supervision of the Minister of Fine Arts and the courses have been prepared under expert advice.

The Directrice of the School is Madame Mary Picheu daughter of the professor of dancing to the Royal family. She has long been an ardent advocate of the beauty and grace of the dances of the past against what she terms "the vulgar gyrations of modern dancing."

Younger girls are invited to attend the school to become professionals, but older women are also invited to benefit from the physical training the lessons will give.

Sanity Of German General Worry To His Friends

(By Universal Service)
BERLIN, Dec. 19.—The question of General Eric von Ludendorff's sanity has been seriously raised by the "Bremer Kirchenblatt" one of the organs of the Evangelical church from whose membership the general recently withdrew.

Throwing out the tentative suggestion that all the sane and responsible under which Ludendorff labored for four years of war has destroyed his mental equilibrium, the periodical says: "General Ludendorff has withdrawn from the Evangelical church. Through his gifted leadership in the war he has a claim to the gratitude of his people."

"But so much of what one hears of him, brings forth the thought that the terrible strain of the four difficult years of the war, and then the frightful disappointment over the unsuccessful end, has caused an abnormal condition."

STUDENTS "GO IN FOR" CARS IN LAST STAGE

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 19.—The junk motor car is the favorite equipment of the moment among students at the University of Missouri.

Fleets of rumbling, dilapidated old veterans of the highways descended on this town for the opening of the university. The rivalry among the owners of these wheezy, mechanical steeds is so great that a student's popularity and honors threaten to hinge on the antiquity of his motor car.

This craze for old automobiles has been a boon to parents' pocket-books and also has helped solve the motor car problem of the university. School authorities have discouraged the use of motor cars by students and have urged parents to refrain from providing their sons and daughters with cars.

But a junk motor car, which is not very well adapted for speeding or jorjoring purposes, is not looked upon so suspiciously by members of the discipline committee as is a new high-powered roadster.

Virtually every junk yard in the state is represented in the collection of shambling, loose-fendered "strip-downs" assembled here. Students who did not come provided with ancient automobiles are finding their wants supplied by the local junk yards who are holding record breaking bargain sales for the student trade.

Prices are so low that almost any student can own an antique motor car. The most expensive models are $24.50.

Capital is Money in the Bank

Stripped of all its high-sounding pretensions, the word "capital" ceases to be awesome or impressive. Simply defined, capital is nothing more than "a stock of accumulated wealth." Money in an American Trust Company savings account is the capital—and very real capital—of the person that is accumulating it systematically, a few dollars at a time. The earnings that accrue from the payment of four per cent interest compounded semi-annually, are important aids to the growth of capital. Can Married Couple Live on $20 Week? Easy, Says Woman

BY VIVA LINDSAY
(By Universal Service)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 19. A high falutin' notion, and that is why they can't live on their salaries," says Mrs. McMahon.

Mrs. Rose Ohaus assistant, commissioner of public welfare, says a couple can live on $20 a week if they live frugally.

Mrs. McMahon, who will be 60 years old this month, has entered the dispute on the side of the poor. W. A. Tetley, whose recent public declaration that a couple could live happily on $20 a week and save $1 a week to boot has aroused a storm of protest.

"Why, a couple can live here on $20 a week," says Mrs. McMahon. "Take me, for example, I save $7 on a $12 a week salary."

Mrs. McMahon supports herself by giving at the Goodwill Industries. Out of her $1 savings she sends $5 a week to her son, who was a sufferer in the Arkansas floods last summer. She saves the other $2 for a "rainy day."

The Rev. Mr. Tetley, pastor of the Westport Methodist church, has been assailed by a barrage of questions from young married couples. Following his statement that they can live on $20 a week and some have submitted budgets to show that $30 a week is the minimum on which the necessities of life can be provided.

Mr. Tetley, in his sermon, declared that if young couples had stamina enough to live on $19 a week and save $1 they would be on the road to success.

"When a prospective father-in-law asks a young man how much he can earn," said he pastor, "the young man is justified in asking him how much his daughter can spend."

Following the protests about his statement Tetley declared that he did not advocate $20 a week as a financial basis for marriage but was trying to show couples who had that income how to make the best of it.

'SHIELD WIPER KEEPS GLASS FREE OF RAIN

The obscuring of the windshield by drops of water during rain makes driving dangerous and hazardous and gives the driver a feeling of helplessness.

If the car is equipped with an automatic windshield wiper, such weather holds no terror for the winter driver as the cleaner keeps the glass free from moisture and renders clear vision through the windshield.

The necessity for such a device is recognized by the majority of car manufacturers for automatic windshield cleaners are now appearing on most cars as standard equipment. Yet there are thousands of cars not equipped with such a device, according to R. K. Kelly, local manager of the Western Auto Supply company.

"Automatic types that operate from the intake manifold are very popular, as such cleaners can be set in operation to run fast or slow, according to weather conditions at the will of the driver," says Kelly. "With the automatic cleaner it is not necessary to even remove the hand from the steering wheel once it is turned on."

"The problem of keeping both halves of the glass clean has been solved through the use of a double electric cleaner that sweeps complete half-circles and cleans the entire shield at one operation."

"The Western Auto stores sell thousands of these cleaners each year and their performance is their best advertisement," says Kelly.

PRICE WAR IS IMMINENT IN BRITISH ISLES

LONDON Dec. 19.—The British automobile industry has launched an intensive campaign to hold its own against an expected new offensive from American automobile manufacturers.

By employing the latest selling methods—secrecy and suspense to arouse interest in new types—British car makers are leaving no stone unturned in their efforts to dominate the home market for small cars, which to a large extent they have succeeded in recapturing from American companies. Figures show that British makers now supply 86 per cent of the home trade, whereas in 1922 they marketed only 49 per cent.

"Buy British cars and be proud of it," is the slogan credited with having put the home industry on its feet, but coupled with this is the 31 1-2 per cent import duty on foreign cars and 1 pound annual tax per horsepower. This latter weapon undoubtedly put a crimp in American sales, as the annual tax on a Ford for instance amounts to more than a hundred dollars.

FORD THREAT

Irrespective of the protection afforded them by high taxes and high tariff, British manufacturers are convinced that the new Ford model which is expected to go on sale within a few weeks offers a distinct new threat to the present popularity of the British car. Other than modernizing their factories, it is not known just what methods they will employ to combat this new menace, but rumors persist of a price-cutting war. Also it is rumored in well informed circles that British engineers are working on a new type of car that is said to go fifty miles on a gallon of petrol.

CLOSED CARS URGED

Meanwhile, American makers are developing a new British demand for six and eight-cylinder closed cars. It is this type that offers the best prospects for American manufacturers, says William Park, American trade commissioner in London, who has given particular attention to the British motor industry.

Already 20,000 American cars have been placed in Britain this

—RAGS WANTED—

MEXICO MISSES FAMED BANDIT, THOUGHT DEAD

LAREDO Texas, Dec. 19.—Texas rangers are anxious to know if the phantom bandit of the Rio Grande has at last vanished to the land of never-return. Real flesh and blood, dangerous flesh at that—this bandit for more than 25 years has succeeded in eluding the officers and making such daring escapes that he has been termed the phantom bandit.

Dionisio Martinez was first heard of in the late nineties when he is reported to have killed a ranchman in Northern Mexico and took to the hills. He went into hiding but was finally trailed down by rurales, members of the most famous mounted force Mexico ever had. Martinez dodged the officers until he got to the mouth of an old mine and then he waited until they came within range. He opened fire and is reported to have wounded one of them. He knew that mine and all its entries, air-shafts and exits and though the rurales guarded it for days, then, with miners, entered the passages, they found he had escaped through a shaft that came out more than a mile from the place he went in and had probably been gone three days before they discovered the exit.

ARRIVES AT BORDER
Coming to the border Martinez took refuge on a ranch near Colombia, just across the Rio Grande from the mining town of Minera, Texas. The rurales were on his trail and after several months they located him on the ranch. One moonlight night fourteen of them went to the little shack where he was reported to be hiding and surrounded it. The place had two rooms, a front room and a shed room in the rear. The front room had a high roof and no ceiling, with the rafters exposed and a window cut in the west side above the rafters. Martinez had barred both doors and refused to come out at the order to surrender.

The rurales who had overlooked the high window just under the point of the roof, rushed both back and front doors, while some of them covered a window on the east side. But when they broke in the doors and entered, the bandit was gone. They heard the beat of horse hoofs and when they rushed out they found Martinez had leaped from the window under the roof, had mounted one of their own horses and escaped.

The next heard of the bandit was when he escaped to the Texas side and shot another Mexican near the mines. He was riding one of the back roads one summer night when he met a Mexican vaquero. Martinez was thirsty. He asked for water. The vaquero offered his canteen remarking that there was very little water but that the stranger was welcome to what there was. Martinez drank the water in two swallows, then shot the vaquero down exclaiming "you will need more water where you are going." But the wounded man lay as if dead until Martinez left, then succeeded in getting one arm around his horse's neck and getting back to the mines.

CHASED BY RANGERS
Texas rangers got so hot after Martinez that he worked his way toward the interior of Texas. One time they came within range of him riding through an opening in the brush country near Alice. He opened a running fire on the officers when they approached and though his horse was shot from under him and he was slightly wounded, he escaped.

For several years Martinez vanished. Finally in Wilson county, not far from San Antonio when Will Wright, now ranger captain, was sheriff, a Mexican going under the name of Garcia was reported to have killed his young wife. An investigation proved that Garcia was none other than the outlaw Martinez and that he was living with a young woman as his wife, although not married. He had killed her when he feared she would reveal his real identity, the officers believed.

Coming back to the border Martinez hid out in the brush near the coal mines again. Will Wright, in the meantime, had become a ranger, and kept on the outlaw's trail. At a ranch house on Tordillo creek two rangers found that Martinez and one of his nephews, who also had killed several men in Mexico and had been outlawed, were hiding in a small jacal about three miles inside a big thicket. Not waiting to communicate with Wright, Blaze Delling and L. E. Flack, the two rangers who got the information, went to the jacal. As they rode up Martinez and nephew came out shooting. Delling dropped the nephew in his tracks, but Martinez got away in the brush.

A few months after that Wright heard that Martinez was hiding on an island in the Rio Grande. He took three other men and started to the island in a boat. At the edge of the island the boat turned over and they lost their rifles, but still had way quietly in the brush until they came to a deserted camp in the middle of the small island. Martinez had escaped again.

HID IN MOUNTAINS

The bandit went back to Mexico and hid in the mountains until the revolution came on. He fought through one of the revolutions so well that he was pardoned for his killings in Mexico. He lived a quiet life for some time. But soon the Mexican officials found he was raiding ranches. He was outlawed again and organized a gang in the Lampasas mountains. Up until a few months ago he made regular trips to Nuevo Laredo in disguise but always before he left managed to get word over the river to

HANDBAGS ARE POPULAR FOR SEASON GIFTS

Give some one a good hiding for Christmas.

This does not mean that you are asked to horsewip your best friend, but, is merely the advice of Richmond leather merchants, who point out that for Christmas presents luggage can't be beat. Attractive luggage of all sorts is offered in cowhide, walrus and pig-skin in scores of Richmond stores.

The ever-useful Gladstone is going to be popular with Christmas shoppers this year, it is believed, judging from the purchases already made.

In addition to this serviceable dress-suit cases, hat bags, traveling kits and week-end bags are being featured by the merchants.

His Majesty Never Tires Of Cravats

In this day and age of necking, neckwear is a considerable item.

What can be more appropriate than ask Richmond haberdashers, than a tie for Christmas? But do not give him a tie that binds, the dealers caution, select one of moire, twill or satin smoothness which will set flatter and comfortable under his collar and stay put, after it has once been adjusted.

The ties are being displayed in a host of color combinations and one excellent thing about them as gifts is that one does not have to worry about what size to select.

DAINTY THINGS MAKE WOMAN'S BUYING EASY

For the "feminine" woman Christmas gift buying will be an easy and pleasant task. There are so many little things that are fashionable this year for this woman who clings to her laces and silks, and perfumed bits of ribbon in a day of knitted, tailored wisps of undergarments.

Interesting and varied accessories that belong with the negligee are being brought out in quantities and every department store and especially shop in Richmond is filled to overflowing with dainty, filmy things, many of which include revivals of old fashions.

One revival is the round garter, ribbons, tinsel frills, rosettes and artificial flowers are used for trimming on the negligee and anywhere else that they can be conveniently placed. It is considered chic to have the garters and their trimmings match the negligee.

The current preference for ensemble effects governs all the details of the boudoir robe from the lingerie to the slipper toe. There are mules, some of which are more practical than the regulation form. They are being made of fine chiffon velvet and usually have no trimming of any sort. Those in metal brocade are in beautiful pastel shades combined with silver thread.

It is now usual to have stockings match the gown—especially the negligee—and these are to be had in all of the fashionable colors. Some of the novelties having from Paris are painted and embroidered although the preference of most American women is for a plain or open work style. Black is being worn a great deal, both in stockings of plain chiffon and in those with fancy clocks and insets.

School nurse, says
all girls should
know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping." Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. And the kitchen! What woman can resist revelling in the wonders of inventions and construction which modern science has provided for her delectation, convenience and comfort, as displayed in the fine furniture emporiums of Richmond.

There are stoves with every possible convenience, handsome enough for a drawing room. Electric and gas ranges and so many devices for increasing efficiency and deliciousness of cookery that they almost "cook themselves."

Refrigerators of the most modern design, the last word in food preservation, marvelously conceived and constructed as to make you marvel at their completeness and effectiveness.

And all of the brilliant array of pans, pots, kettles, newly-modelled cooking equipment of every sort and in such variety and profusion as to make you wonder how your ancestors ever managed to get through the day with a fire over a few stones and a few blackened iron pots and tin pans.

Besides all this, a host of other things that you never dreamed of finding in a furniture store until of late years. Pianos, phonographs and the cabinets to contain them, radio sets and the extensive equipment that accompanies them, toys of every sort for the kiddies from babyhood almost to the stage of the varsity football team.

MUNICIPAL RULE COSTS

The increase in cost of municipal government is, frankly, disturbing the experts in Washington. They have the feeling that for all of the gains they make in lowering cost of the federal operation that their savings are at once absorbed by the cities and towns which increase their own rates. The president through the Budget Commission and through Congress acts to directly influence Federal expenditures, but there is no one who has been able to assume blanket authority to even check the increase in rates in city, town and state governments. The governors of the various states in their inaugural messages, continually point to these local increases, but the orgy of spending still continues.

The average per capita cost of administering government in some 250 cities in the United States is now in excess of $40.00 as compared with $37.00 in 1926, an increase of 4 2-3 per cent. In the city of New York for example the per capita cost of 1917 was $25.64; it is now virtually $53.00. Cleveland shows the smallest increase of all the cities. Its per capita cost in 1925 was $39.66 and for 1926 it was $39.67. Yet the Cleveland people are not satisfied, their theory being that instead of the one per cent increase there should have been a decrease.

EUROPE PAYING UNCLE SAM

European governments will pay the United States Treasury some $96,574,000 on their war debts to the United States. If this is paid, the debtor European countries will still owe the Treasury some $11,700,000,000.

On the date given, Great Britain will pay $92,575,000; Czechoslovakia will pay $1,500,000, Belgium will pay $1,125,000; Poland will pay $1,000,000.

Small payments will be made by Finland, Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia.

The Treasury has charged off as a bad debt the $250,000,000 loaned Russia and $16,000,000 loaned to Armenia. The American people will be obliged to settle these two bad debts by the taxes.

Originality: Doing what some other man did so long ago that people have forgotten.

You can't make yourself happy, but any fool can avoid the things that make him unhappy.

When a spinster at last gives up hope, she has one consolation. She is free to eat onions.

Vigorous Health

THE NOSE—it may be a surprise to many of my readers, to learn that I receive frequent inquiries in regard to the nose. Some wish to change its shape; some are tormented by having a red nose; others are afflicted with polyp or deflected septum, while many have the common "running" nose. All in all, it seems that the nose is causing a lot of trouble. It is not the fault of the poor nose, however, so perhaps I had better say a few words on the subject.

The nose is quite an important organ, but its efficiency does not depend upon the shape, so do not bother about that. The nose is designed as a passageway, and as a heating, filtering and moistening agent for the air. The filtration is accomplished by the hairs which guard each nostril. The moistening and heating of the air is accomplished by the warm, moist mucous membrane, which lines the inside of the nose. The surface area of this mucous membrane is made as large as possible in order to allow greater radiation, so that the air may be more quickly heated and moistened.

The surface area is increased because of various structures in the nose, including the septum and the turbinate bones. Hence, these structures should not be removed by operation as is often advised. De-flected septum and enlarged turbinates are not causes of colds and catarrh, but colds and catarrh may produce a hypertrophy of the mucous membrane which is often mistaken for enlargement of the turbinate bones. If continual congestion is present or if there is lachrymation, the nose may become red.

If one lives rightly in every aspect, the nose will remain normal but if this is not done it may exhibit many symptoms, so that the nose is often called the barometer of the body's condition.

I have a tender skin and would like to know a good cream or powder for shaving.—D. S.

Any of the better known shaving creams should be satisfactory, but none will be curative. A correction of the diet to include more raw foods, the persistent use of dry friction and cold water on the face and attention to all general health-building measures should bring about improvement. The application of a little olive oil to the skin before shaving is sometimes helpful.

WHAT MY PET DID

Our white collie dog knows that when he has a big bow of ribbon tied on his collar that he is going out on a nice long auto ride. He just tolerates the family cat, and one day when we tied a ribbon around the cat's neck the dog went over to the cat and pulled the ribbon off and brought it over and laid it at his master's feet.

USE YOUR BANANAS

Bananas may be prepared for the table in many ways. While they are frequently used with cereals, in salads and as desserts housewives have been slow to recognize their advantages as a cooked vegetable.

In the tropics they are used as such, and make an excellent substitute for the potato. They may be baked, boiled or fried and in all these ways are a highly nutritive article of food.

As a vegetable in the ways just mentioned, fruit may be used that has not reached a state of full ripeness, as the starch of the unripe banana, like that of the potato, is real. It is only by cooking for desserts and for eating in the natural state, the rich, sugary, full-ripe fruit is necessary.

Affairs of the Heart and Your Marriage Problems

Patricia Lee

Patricia Lee answers questions relating to problems of married life. Names and address should be added to letters as a mark of good faith but will not be published. Readers who desire private answers should enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover cost of typing, etc. Because of space limitations it is not possible to print answers to all letters received, and readers who wish an early reply should take advantage of this special service. On account of the large quantity of mail coming to this department, about ten days should be allowed for a reply. Write to Patricia Lee, care of this paper.

If one crowds his heart full to overflowing with love, how can there be room for jealousy?

That is simple. There can't be. Jealousy gnaws at the very roots of love and destroys it. Jealousy is equal to the grave. Oh, the things that have been said concerning it, and all so true!

There is no place for it in any relationship, but it destroys most of all when it enters into a relationship between a man and a woman. Doubt and mistrust go hand in hand with jealousy, and doubt on the part of one leads eventually to doubt on both sides.

Learn to analyze your emotions especially if you feel the slightest stirring of jealousy in your relations with your wife or your husband or the one to whom you are betrothed. Be fair with yourself, so that you may be square with your loved one. Try to see nothing but good in everything that is done and check doubt before it is born!

If a woman smiles sweetly or coos over your husband at a party congratulate yourself on having such an attractive husband! If you think that your wife gets a bit too much attention, feel sure that her popularity is reflected in yourself.

Dear Patricia Lee—

I can't help being jealous. My wife is the best ever and I know she loves me. She does everything for me and is the best pal a man ever had. Every one has always liked her, and I know a good many other men would like to marry her. She has often told me that she only tried to tell me and knew that she was waiting for me, though she did not even know me. Well, I still feel that she likes to talk and fool with me and wherever we go she is always the attraction. Understand me, she is a good as any woman could be, but it makes me very unhappy.

JOE.

I guess if you read what I have written above your problem will have been stated to you in cold words. Get over it. Be ashamed to entertain jealousy in your heart. Appreciate and be willing to share your wife's charms with her friends. And don't ruin both your lives.

Dear Patricia Lee—

I have been married two years. My mother-in-law has been living with us since our marriage and she is old-fashioned and is always finding fault. I am sick and tired of it all. I have told my husband to find a home of our own for us, where we can have peace, and he has promised to do it. He made the promise a year ago and I can't see that he has made any attempt. I know that he loves me, but since my married life is one of continual nagging I am afraid that my love for my husband is cooling. I get so discouraged that I feel that I could leave him at times. Won't you please advise me what to do?—UNHAPPY.

I can fully appreciate how you feel and know, too, that resentment against your husband for not doing the thing that you think he should do for you will affect your love for him. Put it up to your husband as strongly as you have told me and see if it won't awaken him to his responsibility to his wife and make the need is urgent.

him see also that his own happiness is at stake. Every young couple should have the privilege of living by themselves if it is at all possible. I think I hope you can straighten out your difficulties by one move!

WHAT YOUR BODY TELLS

Some men just naturally sit up like generals and others just naturally won't. By their postures they are known. The man who sits up in a lazy-bones fashion is far from the general type. He has always been lacking in enthusiasm and pep. He is the fellow who is discouraged, never been sure of himself. He indulges in too much day-dreaming and does not attempt to put his thoughts into action. He falls behind in the race because he thinks only of today and plans nothing for the future. He'd like to win, but he capitalizes CAN'T.

This is the fellow who enjoys listening to others' worries and woes. He likes to discuss his own misfortunes and compare them with the worst in town. It will be hard to make this man realize that the world is not all wrong, that it is he who is all wrong, that it is he who is out of harmony with natural laws.

He is well intentioned, but he is the type who follows the line of least resistance, and that is not the man who makes the grade in this day and age.

GOOD MANNERS

Q. Is it ever permissible for a young man to offer a young girl a loan? I am very fond of this girl; she has a run of bad luck recently and I want to help her, but do not wish to offend her.

A. It is decidedly a delicate matter, and under ordinary circumstances highly improper. Your intentions are unselfish and if the loan is offered in a tactful way, however you may do so—if responsibility to his wife and make the need is urgent.

CUTEST THING BABY EVER SAID

One day I sent Junior to the store to get a can of imported catfish. He returned saying, "I went to the store myself. The grocer explained that Junior had forgotten the name, but said 'It was something imported from Russia.'"

WHY I BLUSHED

A young railroad man who hung around our office a lot dropped in one day and while talking with him I happened to glance out of the window, where my eyes rested upon a sight that surprised me. For in front of the office stood a horse and buggy. The occupant of the buggy was a lady who must have weighed around 300 pounds. I said "Oh, boy, look at the bumpy elephant!" The man said to me, "You wouldn't believe that that woman only weighed ninety pounds a year ago would you?" I said, "Why, do you know her?" and he said, "I ought to be her wife!"

SIGHT SEEING

A Thrilling Detective Story!! BLAKE of Scotland Yard

By ROBERT F. HILL

The Final Reckoning

CHAPTER XII

When Blake found the switch, and turned it on, the lights disclosed to the blinking detectives a scene of devastation and death. One of the Spider's men was crawling pitifully across the floor. Albert Drexel, the shreds of whiskers still sticking grotesquely to his white face lay cold on the floor in the black clothes of the Spider. But more terrifying than anything else to Blake and Lord Blanton, the real Spider, with Diana in his arms, was running up the hall stairs. One of the men raised his revolver.

"Don't shoot," cried Blake, knocking up his hand. Indeed it would have been the height of folly, for the Spider was using Diana as a shield. As the Spider reached the topmost stair, he faced them for a moment. Then he turned and waved a paper mockingly as he disappeared. Blake was up the stairs three at a time, but when he reached the landing there was no one in the hall and all the doors were closed. Like a maniac he ran from door to door and then ran down the hall.

In the library a strange sight met his eyes. The door to the safe had been blown off in the explosion. It had been one of the Spider's cleverest tricks to disguise Albert as himself while he located the formula. Now he had that as well as Lady Diana. Everyone seemed to be congregated about a group on the floor.

Leaning over Albert in an utter abandon of grief was the lady in white. She was stroking his face and kissing him passionately, tears streaming down. But the witness that Blake had seen in her face as he watched her once before had gone. Gradually her grief changed into an expression of determination. "What are you to Drexel," Blake demanded as he pointed at Albert on the floor.

"His mother," replied the woman in white with the dignity that comes from supreme sacrifice. "And for this deed, the Spider shall die. With the tread of an avenging angel she started for the stairs.

Unerringly she stopped at a door and knocked. There was a muffled answer within, suddenly stifled. Blake tried it. Albert's mother motioned to Blake to continue pounding while she entered another room next the one in which the Spider had taken refuge.

Evidently she unlocked a connecting door, for Blake, listening at the keyhole heard her say:

"Shoot if you dare, coward. Albert's blood is already on your head."

The next instant the door was opened. In the far corner stood the Spider. Before him he held Diana Beresford, and in the same hand he held the formula. In the other hand the Spider held a revolver. It was pointed at the girl.

"For a million pounds, I will surrender this paper and Lady Diana. Refuse, and—" He left the rest to be imagined. There was silence in the room. Blake looked at Lord

Blanton, and both of them looked at the lady in white. With eyes fixed on the Spider and with purpose in her movements, she was gliding slowly toward the window. It seemed as though she were executing a flank movement. As she moved she touched the panels of the wall. The Spider looked at her nervously.

Blake saw a door started to open and he dashed left. Through it he managed to see a long hall. On the spot of the moment he dashed forward, first pitching Diana toward the rushing Blake. Both he and Lord Blanton stumbled over her as the Spider had planned. The lady in white gave a hysterical shriek and tumbled over in a faint.

But there was no hall through the door the Spider had entered. It was a closet, and there was no opening out of it—save one. As the Spider passed frantically on what he had taken for the door to the hall, he realized to his consternation that it was a large mirror. As he wildly passed in this mirage, the floor of the closet under him gave way and he dropped, frantically grasping at the slippery sides of a smooth chute into the water of the moat.

Blake and his men, looking over the sill of the door saw only bubbling water gleaming cruelly in the center of the mirrored closet of death.

"It is a death trap, built into Blanton Towers by the first Lord Blanton," said the lady in white, after she had been revived by Diana. She was trembling so that she could not stand and could hardly speak as she looked pitifully at Lord Blanton, while Blake held Diana in a close embrace.

"I've had a terrible dream, Henry, a horrible nightmare ever since my half brother returned. He was the Spider. He had a hold on me and—on my son. How he discovered our secret, the gold formula, I don't know. He threatened me unless I stole it for him. I feared for your life—then something snapped here—and—that's all that I can remember until I saw Albert lying there dead."

Lord Blanton gathered his wife in his arms. There was no question of his forgiveness. Tears of joy welled up into her eyes, through which she looked up at Sir Henry and smiled as she said:

"One thing that we all have to be thankful for is that the cursed formula was destroyed with my brother," and she shuddered as she raised herself to a sitting posture. "It was accused from the start. It has always cursed men who tried to find a secret not intended for them. God never intended men to have anything without working for it. It would have cursed future generations. From the bottom of my heart I am glad, glad it has been destroyed and the sank back again happily on the shoulder of her husband.

"One good thing the cursed thing did though," said Angus Blake, as he boldly kissed the blushing Lady Blanton. "There me a blessing tho' I shall cherish all my life."

$1,000.00 CHRISTMAS PRESENT
For Some One

The Whole Family will enjoy the Comfort, Happiness and Prosperity that this desirable present will bring to you all for years and years to come.

DO YOU WANT IT?
Of Course you do, so will any others.
"First Come - First Served"

HERE IS THE STORY
Mr. decided to build a home in Mira Vista and selected plans for a five room house and garage that contained everything one could desire in a convenient, modern up-to-date home.

He selected a beautiful corner lot 55x80 that is "just right" for his "ideal home" with a view that would always be pleasing. Well, he built and built, added something here and something there; the best was none too good for "his home." Unfortunately he did not "stop to count the cost" for when the house was finally finished he found that he had gone far beyond his means; he was unable to "pay the bills." The creditors were compelled to take the property over and we have been instructed to sell it for the amount of their interest.

The total selling price is $2500.00 Less Christmas present 1000.00

Net selling price $1500.00 Payable $500 or so cash, then about $10 per month which is what it would rent for; so the first payment is about all it will cost—lot, house and all.

Buy Her A Dab Of Lace For Christmas, Advice To Seasonal Shoppers

The solution to the frantic one's gift will be needed and shopper's problem—the article which dodges the troublesome question of size and the fearful doubt of duplication—according to Richmond merchants, is the handkerchief.

They point out that no man realizes how few handkerchiefs he owns until winter comes, and that girls handkerchiefs are small and delicate that there's a ways room and use for one more.

The man with the acquisitive instinct, who revels in ownership, will get a thrill from the sight of his initial embroidered in the corner.

With unlimited choice of color and border design, the Christmas giver has the opportunity of expressing individuality and good taste in the selection.

And one may rest assured that

In choosing handkerchiefs for a girl, the buyer is advised to select something flimsy and good looking that can be crammed into a variety case or waved at a departing train.

A man's handkerchief must be large enough for actual use. The masculine mind is unable to grasp the purpose of the miniature affairs carried by the girls and wouldn't have any idea how to use it.

ALL EXPERTS
One of the principal reasons for the handkerchief's popularity as a Christmas present, one man declares, is because everyone can make an expert choice.

A non-smoker selects cigars at his own peril, he continues, even a golfer cannot be sure of selecting a club his friend will like, but everyone is more or less of an authority on handkerchiefs and can do his shopping confidently and intelligently with the assurance that his gift will be welcome.

Smoking Fiend Will Welcome Ashtray
Too many ashtrays? There's no such thing, according to smokers, who assert that no matter how many there are around the house, they always have need for two or three more.

For this reason Richmond firms suggest that an ashtray is an ideal Christmas gift for a smoker. There are a wide variety, ranging from simple copper trays to elaborate affairs with stands and places for cigarettes, tobacco and pipes.

Other suggestions for the smoker include cigar and cigarette cases, lighters and humidifiers.

Cuba's National Lottery May Prove Country's Curse

HAVANA, Dec. 19.—Is the national lottery Cuba's curse or will it be her salvation?

President Machado was elected on a platform that promised to abolish the lottery when the financial condition of the island permitted. Today there are many who say that if the lottery continues in operation Cuba's financial condition will never improve sufficiently to permit of its abolition.

Supporters of the institution quote Monte Carlo as a shining example of the blessings derived from games of chance. Monaco is a wealthy principality, none of its citizens want and nobody pays taxes. The gambling halls take care of the national budget. But natives are forbidden to gamble there. Wise ruler, who put that clause in the constitution of his country!

LEGACY FROM SPAIN
The lottery is one of Spain's legacies to Cuba. It was suppressed for a time but now it is a full swing again and foreigners, living in Cuba, have also caught the fever of excitement attendant on the tri-monthly drawings. A hundred thousand dollars is a prize to be spoken of reverentially and one often hears of a neighbor who has held all or part of a winning ticket. For instance a few months ago one of the Bacardis brought a whole ticket and as it happened to be St. Joseph's day, he gave a fourth of it to two men in the office who happened to be named Joseph. And the number won the big prize and goodness knows the Bacardis have money enough without winning prizes in the lottery.

The drawings are conducted in a dignified manner. They occur on the tenth, the twentieth and the thirtieth of each month. A body of men, judiciously selected, preside over the drawings and recently a new hall has been opened so that anyone who wishes can join the crowd of spectators. It is a study to watch the faces of that crowd, hope, eagerness, disappointment, despair and once in a while, joy.

ELECTRICALLY OPERATED
Two large brass wire globes, now operated by electricity contain little numbered tickets. The larger contains the numbers representing the tickets, the smaller the numbers representing the prizes. The printing of the tickets must provide someone with a splendid income for each of the thirty thousand numbers is divided into a hundred parts so that one can buy a hundredth part of a ticket and have a chance to win a hundredth part of the big prize. These tickets are issued by the government to the collectorias or agencies and these same agencies are often widows of government employees, at a uniform price of twenty dollars for a whole ticket. The agents dispose of them to middlemen who in turn sell them to the street peddlers so that the ultimate purchaser pays about a proportion of thirty dollars a ticket.

Small boys from the Foundling Asylum are chosen to read off the numbers as they slip from the wire globes along a chute. At a given signal the globes revolve at another signal they stop and a lever releases a disk from the larger globe. The small boy standing near picks it up, reads off the number; a second boy picks up the disk that has rolled from the smaller globe, the amount of the prize.

PRIZES VARY
It may be a small prize of a hundred dollars; it may be larger prize of a hundred thousand dollars. The boys however never vary the monotony of their chants. This is repeated, with intervals for mixing the disks thoroughly, until every prize number has been called. Needless to say many numbers remain in the larger globe. The disks, numbers and prize to correspond are threaded on wire frames so that can be consulted and verified. The numbers are put up on a blackboard and presently printed in the official list.

Tuberculosis Insurance Is Italian Government's Plan

ROME, Dec. 19.—Institution of a scheme of Workmen's Compulsory Insurance against Tuberculosis is the latest achievement of Mussolini. In a recent meeting of the Council of Ministers approved a plan whereby it is expected to reduce the mortality due to the white plague by fifty per cent.

The Duce's plan is fourfold. It embraces first, education of the people to the dangers of tuberculosis and methods of preventing it; secondly, care of the stricken in hospitals; thirdly, construction of vast sanatoria for the convalescents; and fourthly, and most important, Governmental assistance for the families of the workmen.

The average cost of this insurance to the laborer will be about ten cents a month. This is the first time any State has ever undertaken so vast a project of industrial insurance. There are about seven and a half million workmen in Italy who will benefit by this scheme. They and their families form a body of some twenty million inhabitants who will all be included in the provisions of the plan.

With characteristic energy Mussolini has proceeded to the execution of the scheme by ordering the preparation of eighteen thousand beds, which will be placed in the institutions for the afflicted. In addition an order has been placed for two thousand more to take care of the convalescing. Italian medical centres are now busily preparing outlines of plans for the latest models in modern hospitals, equipped with every possible comfort and convenience for the care of the patient. The National Sinking Fund has already placed at the disposition of the hospital building board a sum equal to almost two million dollars for the preliminary work of the plan.

Complete details of the measure are not yet worked out and some have yet to be decided. At the present time experts are determining the amount of money that the State should be prepared to give to the family of the sick.
